NINETY THOUSAND MUST COME BY THEN

Citizens' Committee to Push Contribution Enterprise Consists of Prominent Business and Professional Men.

Guy C. Barton has subscribed $10,900 to the building fund of the Young Men's Christian association, conditional on the raising of $50,000 more by July 15. His subscription has created a great deal of enthusiasm among the men of the committees which are engaged in raising mopey for the new building. Said I. W. Carpenter, who is leading the campaign

Mr. Barton, in his generosity, is setting an example to the men of means in business and the influence for the moral welfare of the city will be far reaching." It is hoped this is only one of many similar subscriptions. B. C. Wade, general secretary of the association, said: believe when people realize the extent of our enterprise as they are beginning to do-the fact that we are planning a building that will serve for many years to come and one that will be the

Reviving pleasant memories of their un omplete the work for the year has brought dergraduate days, the senior class of 1905 of Preceding the banquet an informal recep-ion was held in the parlors of the hotel. The receiving committee was composed of Mrs. Ida Fleming, Curtis Lindsay, the class president, and Miss Kate McHugh, class From the parlors the class marched to the banquet hall, where much of the best that the culinary art affords, awaited them, with the proper trimmings of oratory slated to follow. "The New Point," was dwelt upon by Principal Waterhouse, who pointed out some of the illusions that pupils in their high school course are apt to have, but which the acquiring of experience in the proper season is bound to dispel. He gave them pointed maxims and well worded bits of advice to take to heart and remember. Superintendent Davidson spoke on "The End of the Play," saying that the drama of a high school career was closed for a class that had shown its merit and of which the institution that it leaves may well be proud. His advice to the young people was: "Place your ideal ahead of you and pursue it until you have obtained it." He said that what a man is today he will be tomorrow. Touching the subject more closely he explained that if during his school days a pupil is conscientious, determined, upright and wholesomely ambitious he will be so in the future when confronted with the serious problems of life. In the same connection he said: "You must dedicate yourselves to the service of your fellow nen and in discharging this duty every one muct work helpfully and soulfully." Some striking ideas were brought out in the toasts responded to by the class nembers themselves. The following subjects were discussed: "The Class of 1965," Curtis Lindsay; "The Might-Have Beens," Miss Anna Cajori; "Emancipation," Donald Douglas; "The Senior's Rubaiyat," Arthur Procter; "The Old Clock on the Tower," Miss Jocelyne Charde; "Senior Troubles," Homer Conant. Lyman Bryson presided as toastmaster. At the conclusion of the program the class united in singing a song that was written especially for the occasion.
